Re-enactors of the Revolutionary War march up Louisville Road in Savannah, retracing the route of the Revolutionary forces that attacked the British Oct. 9, 1779. The march ended at Battlefield Memorial Park with a dedication ceremony to honor the thousands of troops that clashed, and the hundreds who died, in a bloody Revolutionary War Battle on Oct. 9, 1779.

The early morning fog gave an eerie realism to the dedication of Savannah's Battlefield Memorial Park Oct. 9, which was built to honor the 800 Revolutionary War Soldiers who fought and died on the site 228 years ago.

The ceremony began with Revolutionary War re-enactors ascending a hill up Louisville Road to a slow drumbeat; the faint sound of bagpipes followed. They marched to the site where Revolutionary forces assaulted the British in a bloody Revolutionary War battle for control of Savannah on Oct. 9, 1779. A small troupe of 3rd Infantry Division Soldiers followed the en-enactors, along with city officials and history enthusiasts who included Coastal Heritage Society members and its executive director, Scott Smith, who narrated events of the battle.

"The assault lasted about 55 minutes," said Smith as he reached the battlefield site. "Before it was over, 800 soldiers lay dead or dying."

As the ceremony continued, speakers such as Pawl Maciag, the press attaché for the Polish Embassy in Washington D.C., gave tribute to those who fought on both sides of the Revolutionary War. He said Polish cavalry leader Casimir Pulaski, who was among the war's freedom fighters, was mortally wounded fighting for the Revolutionary Soldiers.

"The Polish assisted us in our time of need," said Lt. Col. Daniel Whitney, Hunter Army Airfield garrison commander, who was among the group that followed the Revolutionary en-enactors up Louisville Road. "That war was 228 years ago," he said. "We still have free people and volunteer armies that fight for the freedom of others—a prime example is the multi-national forces in the battlefields of Iraq."

As the ceremony progressed, Savannah Mayor Otis Johnson took the podium and highlighted another similarity between warriors past and present — their diversity. Whitney agreed with that comparison.

"There was diversity among Revolutionary War soldiers and there's diversity in our forces now," said Whitney.

The ceremony continued as more than two dozen heritage groups placed wreaths at the 96-year-old Sons of the Revolution marker that sits directly atop the original location of the Spring Hill Redoubt, the site where the war was waged. For decades the granite monument resided off Louisville Road but was moved closer to the battlefield several years ago. American, French and Haitian blood was spilled at that site, according to Michael Jordon, the Coastal Heritage Society's spokesperson.

Following remarks from the United Kingdom Consul, the Vice Consul of France and a representative of Haiti, a ribbon-cutting ceremony was held at the base of the flagpole erected over the 800 granite markers placed on the battlefield site. The markers symbolized the completion of the five decades of work required to complete the park.

The ceremony ended with three howitzers from the Third Infantry Division firing a 21-gun salute, followed by a moment of silence.

In his closing remarks, Maciag proclaimed that the battlefield belongs to the freedom loving people of the world.

"It also represents people who are willing to fight for the freedom of others," Whitney said. "Eventually, we eventually won our independence from Great Brittan, but later Great Brittan stood by our side in WWI and in WWII. It also stands by us now in the Global War on Terrorism."

College probe educates community at Club Stewart

Pat Young

Seventeen year-old Assante Diaz, a senior at Bradwell Institute, attended Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield's 4th annual College Probe, held at Club Stewart to talk to a number of institutions of higher learning to see how they could help him in his quest to become a physical therapist.

"He's good at sports, he plays football, basketball, cross country and track," said Assante's father Sgt. Tony Diaz, who works at the Warrior Transition Unit taking care of injured Soldiers. Sgt. Diaz accompanied his son to help his son find the college that was right for him.

The probe featured more than 70 colleges and technical schools, including 56 schools from scattered locations around Georgia, South Carolina and Missouri, according to event coordinator and Schools Liaison David Smith.

More than 400 students from various high schools in the Fort Stewart area attended the probe to find out what opportunities were offered.

A number of off-post schools attended including students from a number of private schools.

Josh Rodgers, a junior at First Presbyterian Christian Academy, and son to Sgt. Maj. Joseph Rodgers took advantage of the opportunity to go with his school because his dad was deployed in Iraq.

"The event helps me prepare for my future," Rodgers said. "Preparing now, helps me, my Family and my community."

He was joined by the visit to Stewart by his fellow student Logan McCorkle who said he came to find about the various colleges in the area. "You need to start researching colleges early, so you can prepare for them."

Diaz agreed said he was preparing for college by taking the Scholastic Assessment Test and attending the College probe to get as much information as possible.

Smith said if community members missed the probe, they could gain information about college opportunities by talking to school councilors or representatives at the Sgt. 1st Class Paul R. Smith Education Center at Stewart at 767- 2867.

Winn Army Community Hospital

The Influenza (Flu) vaccine is here!

Ann Erickson
Winn Public Affairs

It is that time of year again- time to get your flu vaccine.

Winn Army Community Hospital and Tuttle Army Health Clinic have begun an influenza immunization campaign to encourage all beneficiaries to obtain a flu vaccine as the flu season fast approaches.

The flu, which is a highly infectious viral infection of the respiratory system, spreads when germs pass from an infected person to the noses and throats of others.

It is characterized by sudden high fever, chills, headache, muscle aches, sore throat and an unproductive cough. Unlike other common respiratory illnesses, the flu can cause fatigue which lasts several days.

The initial phase of flu vaccinations is for priority populations which includes people 65 years and older, people with respiratory, heart, and other chronic conditions, pregnant women, 6 to 23 month old children, healthcare personnel and residents of long-term care facilities.

The best way to prevent the flu is by getting the vaccine now. According to Maj. Frederick Davidson, Chief, Army Public Health Nursing, the flu vaccine offers protection within about two weeks of administration, and is safe for most patients.

Fort Stewart, vaccines will be available on the following dates:

Fort Stewart Main Post Exchange
Saturday Oct. 20 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Monday Oct. 22 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Tuesday Oct. 23 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Tuesday Oct. 30 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Fort Stewart Commissary

Thursday Nov. 1 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Children must be five years of age and older to receive vaccination at the Fort Stewart Post Exchange and Commissary. Those younger than five years of age should report to Winn Army Community Hospital's Allergy/Immunization Clinic for their flu vaccine beginning Oct. 22.

Hunter Army Airfield, vaccines will be available on the following dates:

Hunter Post Exchange

Friday Oct. 26 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Saturday Nov. 3 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Again, you must be five years of age and older to receive your vaccination at the Hunter Exchange and Commissary. Those younger than five years of age should report to the Tuttle Army Health Clinic to receive their flu vaccine beginning Nov. 8.

The Allergy/Immunization Clinic at Winn Army Community Hospital will offer flu vaccines on a walk-in basis Monday, Wednesday and Friday beginning Oct. 22 from 8 to 11 a.m.; additionally on Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. For more information, call 435-6878.

Tuttle Army Health Clinic's Immunization Clinic will offer flu vaccines on a walk-in basis every Thursday beginning Nov. 8 through Dec. 20 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. However, Nov. 8 from 8 to 11 a.m. is reserved for active duty Soldiers. The clinic will begin vaccinating Federal employees, retirees and family members at 1 to 3:30 p.m. For more information, call 315-5454.

For Federal employees the vaccines will be offered:

Fort Stewart Oct. 29- Nov. 2

Monday through Friday 1 to 3 p.m. at the Occupational Health Clinic, Bldg 308 Winn Army Community Hospital.

Hunter Army Airfield Nov. 8-Dec. 20

Thursdays 1 to 3:30 p.m. at Tuttle Army Health Clinic

For more information, at Fort Stewart call 435-5071/5101 or at Hunter AAF call 315-5454. A questionnaire will be given to help your healthcare provider determine whether you can receive the FLUMIST (the nasal mist) or the FLUZONE/FLULAVAL (the shot). Also, the pneumonia vaccine will be available for those who require it. Anyone seeking a flu vaccine at these locations should be sure to bring their military ID card and available immunization record.

Winn Army Community Hospital and Tuttle Army Health Clinic are dedicated to providing the highest quality care to our customers. Several factors will affect the availability of the flu vaccine. First, production from the manufacture, Second, the mission of our Soldiers, and Third, vaccinating those customers that are identified as high risk. Currently we have more FLUMIST than FLUZONE and FLULAVAL. If you medically qualify to receive the FLUMIST, then that is the vaccine you will be given. Again, we will begin administering the flu vaccine on Oct. 20. We ask that you, our valued customer, be flexible as circumstances change, and the vaccine continues to arrive. If you have questions about the flu vaccine, call Army Public Health Nursing at 435-5071.

Army Values: Know where your loyalties lie

Chap. (Col.) Michael Walker
31D Rear Detachment Chaplain

As a Tenderfoot Scout, I had to learn the Boy Scout Law ("A Scout is Trustworthy, Loyal, Helpful, Courteous . . ."). Now, more than forty years later, I can still recite it. I think there is no coincidence that the second point, behind only "Trustworthy," is "Loyal." Since Loyalty is the second of the twelve points of the Scout Law, and is the first of the Army Values, I think we can see how important it must be. Loyalty is one of the foundational blocks on which our relationships, and our society, are built.

In fact, the position of loyalty next to trustworthiness in the Scout Law indicates that these two attribute go together. Can you trust someone who is not loyal? Would you be loyal to someone you cannot trust? And among the Army Values, Loyalty is positioned next to Integrity. If you have no integrity, how many people do you think will be loyal to you? Yes, these values go together, and they overlap in our lives.

Closely related to loyalty in my mind is the idea of commitment. Once you make a commitment to someone or something, you owe them your loyalty. One who is committed—who is loyal—will not waiver in dedication to the object of that commitment. Jesus said, "No one who puts his hand to the plow and looks back is fit for service in the kingdom of God." It is obvious that if he is looking back he will not be able to plow a straight row. That may be the result, but why was he looking back in the first place? There was something behind him that he must have thought more important than what was ahead. If he had truly committed himself to plowing, he would have remained loyal to the plow, looked forward instead of back, and his production would have shown it.

Marriage also provides a great picture of loyalty and commitment. In our traditional wedding ceremonies we often hear the admonition to the bride and groom to "forsake all others" and be a faithful wife or husband. This idea comes from the Bible's words that "a man will leave his father and mother and be united to his wife." Some translations say he will "cleave" unto her; the word actually means "to be glued to." Two objects that are glued together are inseparable, actually become one object, and so should a husband and wife be. When a couple chooses to form a family they make a commitment, and pledge their loyalty to one another.

So where are your loyalties? What (or whom) are you committed to? If to an organization or group, you must be totally committed to that cause. If it is a family group, particularly a marital relationship, it must be with unquestioned dedication. If it is to God and His kingdom, there is no room for compromise.

AE The Rise of Jessica Alba, movie actress

Commentary by:
Sasha McBrayer
Fort Stewart Museum

One 26-year old actress has been voted 2007's "Sexiest Woman Celebrity" by Victoria's Secret, ranked number 2 in Maxim's "Hot 100" two years in a row, as well as Playboy's "25 Sexiest Celebrities". That actress was born Jessica Marie Alba in April of 1981.

All this attention has been given to a young woman who swears she would not appear nude on film or in print, however does pose for nude magazines; simply by keeping some clothes on. She even sued Playboy for using a promotional image for her film "Into the Blue" without her permission. This was after she had previously threatened the magazine for misleading the public in the past into believing she would appear nude within its covers.

The issue was settled out of court when Hugh Hefner apologized and donated to two of Alba's favorite charities.

Saying that Alba is pretty is an understatement. The actress of Mexican descent, whose mother is French and Danish in ethnicity, has said she's good friends with Ava Longoria and Ava Mendes. Alba, however, does not speak much Spanish and recalls her Mexican grandfather's trials in this country.

She has said that he was the only Hispanic at work and at his country club. He chose not to speak Spanish in his home with his children, thinking that the less different they seemed, the better they'd do in the United States.

Alba has been acting since she was a child.

She had a recurring role in Nickelodeon's "The Secret World of Alex Mack" and had her first feature film debut with "Camp Nowhere" in 1993. By 1995 she had a role in "Flipper".

Since her rise to fame the actress has met scrutiny for being more a pretty face and less a skilled actress. Her addition to the "Fantastic 4" franchise has shown positively on the young actress, however. She stars as Susan Storm, also known as The Invisible Woman.

Sue has appeared in Fantastic 4 comics since the 1960s. The blonde haired, blue eyed love interest of Reed Richards seemed at first a huge stretch for an actress of Latin background.

Alba impressed many with the seriousness with which she attacked the role. She strived to make her a multi-dimensional as possible and prove for Storm, and almost for herself at the same time, that an attractive woman could also be smart. Storm, after all is a scientist like Mr. Fantastic.

Recently Alba has starred alongside comedian Dane Cook in "Good Luck Chuck".

The reviews for this film have been some of the worst I've seen since another Hispanic actress tried to mix things up in "Gigli" (2003).

I may not stand in line to see "Good Luck Chuck". However, audiences can't deny that Alba put her heart in this role. She was excited to have all of the physical comedy in the film and the challenges that came along. From here, we can only cross our fingers, and hope Alba's next roles will allow the actress to show more of her chops.

Firefighters help fire prevention

Special to the Frontline

Firefighters visited libraries, schools, businesses and activities around Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield to promote fire safety during fire prevention week Oct.7-13.

Children and parents were delighted when Sparky and Stewart firemen, visited the Stewart Library Oct. 10.

The event was part of the Stewart Library story time groups learning about Fire Safety Week.

"The firemen who participated and helped make this a memorable event," said Maryilyn Mancuso, Stewart librarian. "The Story Time Group meets every Wednesday at 3:30, except on holidays. They hear stories, do crafts, and enjoy special events."

One of the other places firefighters visited was the Hunter PX. Fire inspectors Tony Fornicola, Nazario Fabela and Tom Cadigan handed out promotional items, such as coloring books and fire helmets there.

The group also visited the Hunter Child Development Center and area schools.

Everywhere the firement went they tried to promote three points of fire prevention: 1) practice two evacuation routes from home 2) stop, drop and roll if you or your clothes catch on fire and 3) install a smoke detector and change the batteries annually.
