Maintain downs Raiders, 2-1

Edwin Perez blocked eight shots in the second half and Hector Bonet put a shot past Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade's goalkeeper to lead the B Company, 703rd Main Support Battalion Maintain soccer team to a 2-1 win over the Raiders Monday night at the Intramural Sports Complex.

After a slow first half that saw the two teams trade goals, Maintain took the win despite taking only two shots on goal in the final 20 minutes.

Perez's second half effort in goal was the deciding factor in the game. The raiders constantly brought the ball downfield, and he at times found himself blocking repeated shots.

Maintain got on the board first when Dwight Gilzene brought the ball through a group of Raider defenders and powered it past Raider goalie Carl Winowiecki in the 15th minute.

The Raiders answered with a goal of their own which, despite being scored by an illegal player, was allowed to stand after a conference between the two teams' captains. The score made it 1-1 going into halftime.

Both teams pushed the ball well in the second half, but Maintain failed to convert most of their drives into shots on goal. Winowiecki saw only two shots come his way, but Bonet's goal in the 30th minute secured the victory for 703rd.

"It felt great to put in the winning goal," Bonet said. "I don't normally play forward, so it was kind of awkward out there. But it was good to be on the offensive side of things for a change."

Gilzene took Maintain's only other shot on goal in the closing half.

The win, coupled with a forfeit by 95th Maintenance Company in an earlier game, pushes Maintain's record to 5-1, good enough for second in Freedom Conference. The Raiders fall to 2-3.

Maintain goalie Edwin Perez stops a Raider shot during Tuesday night's game. He blocked eight shots in the second half to secure the win.

Joey Anderson, A Co., 11th Eng. Bn., sends the ball into outfield near the end of a close 16-13 win over JAG Monday.

11th Engineers edge out JAG

Spc. Katherine Robinson

What could have been an easy win against the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate became a tense competition for A Company, 11th Engineer Battalion at the 703rd Main Support Battalion softball fields Monday night.

The engineers beat the skeleton JAG team 16-13, but felt they could have played better, especially considering the odds, according to engineer player Jared Hart.

The JAG team escaped a near brush with forfeit by recruiting leftfielder Ken Bir's wife, Kerri, to make an eight-man team.

They went into the game not expecting to win, but hoping to give the engineers a good run for their money and that's what they did.

The game started off slow, with two runs per team in the first three innings.

JAG sparked the game with five runs in the fourth, but the engineers outpaced them with six runs in the bottom of the inning to bring the score to 8-7.

The teams then continued to leapfrog through the rest of the game with JAG scoring two and the engineers three in the fifth frame.

At 11-9, with JAG using every resource, the engineers' substandard batting kept the competition close.

JAG kept the ball in the outfield for a large portion of the sixth, bringing four runners in, only to be one-upped again. The SJA infield and outfield action couldn't match up to their batting skills, and the engineers scored the last five runs of the game.

The seventh came and went scoreless, as the engineers made three quick outs for a 16-13 win.

The general team feeling for 11th Eng. was they could have played much better.

At a 2-1 standing, the team performance was hurt by several injuries and some inexperience, Hart said.

"We made a lot of mistakes but we won," engineer coach Kelley Clark said.

The team will work on batting practice for future matches.

"It was the batting that killed us," Clark explained.

11th Eng. players agreed that JAG put up a good fight, considering the odds. "They weren't afraid to be aggressive," Hart said.

"They hit the ball well," Clark agreed.

JAG coach Shannon Boyer echoed the engineer sentiments. "They played well, but I think they should have beat us by more," he said.

Undaunted, even with a 1-2 standing, Boyer said his goals for the rest of the season are to play hard, have fun and be competitive.

"My theory is, we come to play, we don't get paid any extra to play, so it's all fun," he said.

"JAG played well with seven guys, and a wife," JAG centerfielder Dennis Carletta joked.

Youths score fun in soccer

Pfc. Emily J. Danial

Staff Writer, Hunter Public Affairs Office

As many may have noticed, most children love any activity that involves running back and forth at a high rate of speed.

Since soccer has been known to fall under the umbrella of running-back-and-forth activities, Hunter Army Airfield youth were in rare form in their game Oct. 30.

The game, which was between the Wildcats and the Sunblazers, was one of six for the teams, whose regular season runs for approximately six weeks.

"The kids play really hard," Damon Reeves, Sunblazers coach, said. "They have a really good attitude."

The teams are made up of kids from ages five to seven — fun, but not exactly the best ages for planning game strategies, according to Reeves.

"Sometimes it's hard to keep their attention," he said. "But they've really improved a lot since the first practice."

Kandy Reeves, Damon's wife, coaches the Wildcats team, which she said, makes cheering at games a little complicated. Not only do the Reeveses coach opposing teams, but each parent also has a daughter on his or her team.

Of course, competition isn't a huge factor, since during games, teams and coaches don't keep score.

"At these ages, we are not supposed to keep score because it may discourage the children. We are supposed to encourage fun," Damon said.

Still, he said, the coaches' aim is to teach the kids "basic fundamentals."

The Reeveses have been coaching various sports at Hunter for several months.

"It's a lot of fun," Kandy said. "The kids have been really good."

Soldiers claim two titles in Armed Forces Marathon

Jim Hipps

Army News Service

ARLINGTON, Va. — Two Soldiers ran to individual victories Oct. 26 in the 2003 Armed Forces Marathon that was contested in conjunction with the 28th Marine Corps Marathon. Gerardo Avila, 30, of Fort Lewis, Wash., finished 10th overall and was the first U.S. military runner to cross the finish line in a personal-best time of 2 hours, 32 minutes and 59 seconds.

Jacqueline Chen, 41, a podiatrist at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center in Germany, finished seventh among the women to win the female Armed Forces crown in 3:07:36.

"I felt good up until mile 22, and then I shut down," said Chen, who also won the Armed Forces women's division here last year in 3:00:53.

This was Chen's eighth run in "The People's Marathon," including four 26.2-mile treks as a member of the All-Army team. Her Marine Corps Marathon-best is a 2:59:47 run in 1990.

Favoring 10-kilometer to 10-mile runs and referring to herself as "the old lady" of the Army team, Chen said she lost track of how many marathons she's run after completing 30.

Asked if she became a podiatrist because she was a marathoner or became a marathoner because she was a podiatrist, Chen replied with a smile: "I fix my own feet."

"It feels good to come here and have a good race and try to help the team out," said Avila, originally from Fresno, Calif., who ran his seventh marathon Sunday. "And, yes, it does feel good to be the Armed Forces champion."

"I felt great until like mile 24, and from there I was pretty much out of gas. I was just trying to survive the last 2.2 miles. Those were my slowest miles."

Peter Sherry, 35, a high school math teacher from Great Falls, Va., won the race in 2:25:07 against a field of 15,973 finishers. He already has qualified for the 2004 U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials.

Heather Hanscom, 25, a Red Cross researcher from Alexandria, Va., led the women in 2:37:59. Eleven years after undergoing surgery for a brain tumor, she qualified for the U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials in her first attempt at the distance here.

Ted Leblow, 34, a native of Stockton, Calif., stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., was third among Armed Forces competitors and 15th overall in 2:35:54. He and Avila clipped off 5:50 miles together until around mile 18 when Avila surged ahead.

"Our strategy was to work as a team and go slow," said Leblow, who was running his fourth marathon on an unseasonably warm and humid autumn morning in Washington. "When we got here, they said the temperature was 60 or 61 and the humidity was high."

"And the wind was up, so we said: 'Hey, we've got to play this smart and work as a team.' That's what we did," he added. We adjusted our pace and it worked out for us.

"To come in first and third in the Armed Forces Championship is something to be proud of," he said.

Air Force's Mark Cucuzzella, 37, of Denver, finished second among Armed Forces men in 2:33:37.

Leblow ran his fastest marathon (2:28:31) in February at the Austin Motorola Marathon in Texas before being deployed to Iraq for four months. His Olympic dreams revolve around the 2008 Games.

"That's the dream: to make the standard for the 2008 Olympic Trials," Leblow said. "This is my first time representing the Army and to me it's really special. To be able to come out here and be able to represent the whole Army, to think about it in those terms, it's a privilege that we can be here and do that — especially in a year like this."

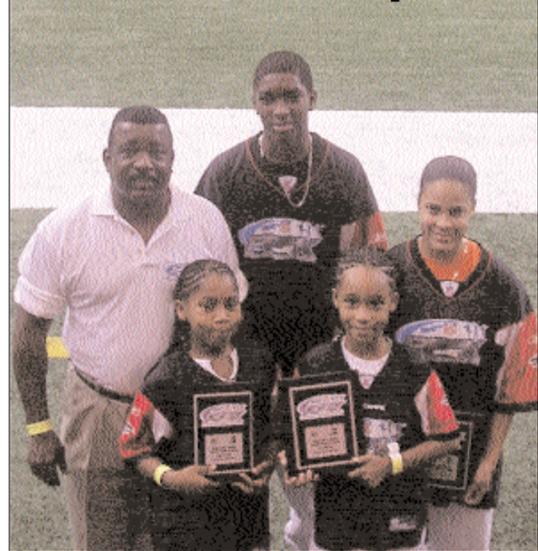

"I've spent four months in Iraq and I know that my unit, the 101st (Airborne Division) is still over there for a year, so it's a privilege to be able to be here and represent the Soldiers who are out there. I'm extremely blessed to be here because I know what those guys are going through over there."

Army's quartet of Avila, Leblow, John Weaver (2:58:30) and Chen finished second in 11:14:59.

This is the sixth consecutive year the Marine Corps, in conjunction with the Armed Forces Sports Council, has hosted a marathon.

Air Force has won the team title three times, the Marines twice, and Army once in 2001.
